

with Loeb the day before he had him to his death. Dick Loeb said: "Well, if you are going to kidnap or murder a person, he is just the kind of a son of a b— you would pick."

Now Darrow Speaks.
But now it is Darrow speaking. Throughout all of Crowe's address he has said nothing. He has heard the John Doe hypothesis of Leopold; the slur from Loeb; now he is talking.

"I want to say a few words at this time. His picturesque, wise, and vagrant from locks fall over his forehead. He thrusts back his coat and chuckles his hands into his pockets; gazes hard at the floor for a moment. "The defendants in this case have pleaded guilty. Under any ordinary case, with any prosecutor, it seems to me, who is interested purely in administering justice, it would not have been possible to go into all the details that have been gone into this morning and make all the covert threats that have been made."

Glances at Prosecutor.
He halts abruptly and stares about the room. "Every one knows that this was a most unfortunate affair." Now he fastens his glare on Crowe and holds up a stiff finger. "That is the cruelest, the worst, the most atrocious ever committed in the United States is pure imagination, without a vestige of truth, and everybody knows that too. These words are the history of the state's attorney, and that is all."

Degrees of Atrocity.
"Crime in any situation is horrible," Darrow starts and stops again. He seems a sweaty, suspicious, and purses a belligerent nether lip. "But when it comes to the question of murder it is doubly horrible. There are degrees and degrees of atrocity. His voice has grown soft, now he talks to Judge Caverly, ignoring the courtroom crowd whose ear is fairly snapping in impatience to catch the sliding word. "Instead of this being one of the worst of an atrocious character, it was, perhaps, one of the least painful and most pitiable inducement. Bad enough, of course, but everybody who has had any experience with the criminal class knows it is utterly absurd for this to be branded, as it has been repeatedly, as the greatest, most horrible and atrocious killing that ever happened."

Retort by Defense.
This call for a clash of wits. Darrow is not slow in retorting. "Your honor," he says, "he has learned that somewhere in a book. He turns to Crowe. "This," he says, "is the law in a lawsuit in spite of your desire to get blood."

Poslanheals.
The issue grows clearer. It is Darrow's fight for life imprisonment against Crowe's demand for the hanging of the boys. The noise drowns under the heads of Leopold and Loeb, who sit just behind Darrow, right where everybody can see it. But each time Darrow tries to thrust it away Crowe puts it back.

Heat in Courtroom About All That Bothers Loeb and Leopold; Otherwise They Feel Fine

Two young college graduates, still wearing a smile on their lips, despite the ringing in their ears of the cries of prosecutors that they are America's coldest blooded "murderers," hurried across the "bridge of sighs" connecting the Criminal Court building and the county jail shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday.

Show Little Concern.
"You tell me, Dick," came the answer from cell 694 as the occupant filled the wash basin with cool clear water and plunged his head into it. "Such was the somewhat characteristic climax that Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb took on at the end of the five hours' session that had just ended in Chief Justice John R. Caverly's courtroom, where the trial for the killing of Bobby Franks was in progress."

Appeal to Passions.
"Of course I might say to your honor that I hesitate under our situation in this case, where we are asking for the clemency we think we ought to have, and nothing more, to be put in the position of executioners and sit still and listen to this statement [Crowe's address] utterly inappreciated to the state, and to the passions of men."

Rules with Crowe.
If Darrow had expected Judge Caverly to side up the crowd of justice and law off most of the prosecutor's program of the "mountain high" evidence he was to be disappointed. The court ruled with Crowe and that gentleman, always panther-like, sprang quickly into his business of piling up his mountain.

Depend Upon It.
This early morning in hot. It is hot on the pavements round about the doleful Criminal Court building and hot on the backs of the policemen who stand guard on street, on curbs and on the sidewalks. Thanks to the farsightedness of Judge Caverly, who gave notice that crowds need not apply, there is only a sprinkling of curious persons. They form a small lane at the entrance to the building. Those that enter have pink tickets signed by the judge. A pink ticket gives one a sense of the profound and important and front-family. The police make you show your pink ticket and you are glad to do it; so many have none; and the hot copper beam on you with as much graciousness as a hot copper can command on a hot July morning.

Poslanheals.
Poslan is so full of gentle, healing medication that it is able to ACT the minute it touches any skin. Itching stops instantly, eruptions vanish, and soon the skin is clear and healthy again. ANYONE can afford skin health because Poslan costs but 50c. at all drug stores.

Nothing Much to Say.
The reporter moved over to where Loeb was reading and leaned against the bars of the cell. "Got anything to say, Dick?" "Not much, but I was just thinking that it is funny to see that girl from the bank, Clara Vinnette, get up there on the stand. I remember how I used to kid around with her a lot in the old days when I was going to school."

Still Retain Confidence.
The boy laughed heartily as he remembered the past. It was the old Loeb laugh that used to ring out across the green slopes of the University of Michigan campus up at Ann Arbor and the Midway on the south side.

TESTIMONY AS BROUGHT OUT IN THE QUESTIONING

Text of Replies by First Day's Witnesses.

It was at four minutes before noon yesterday when Edwin M. Gresham, state's attorney, took the stand in Judge Caverly's court as the first witness for the state in its legal battle to hang Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb.

Loeb Franks was to have given the first testimony for the prosecution, but he was delayed in coming from the state's attorney's office on the second floor to the courtroom on the sixth, and State's Attorney Crowe placed the state on the stand.

Gresham told how he had gone to the undertakers in Hegewisch, where Robert Franks' body lay, and had identified his nephew for certain marks on the teeth left by an attack of rickets when the boy was an infant.

Father Takes Stand.

It was eight minutes past noon when Jacob Franks, the father, was conducted to the witness chair, was sworn, seated himself and leaned forward to hear and answer the questions of Assistant State's Attorney Joseph P. Savage.

The testimony ran as follows: Q—State your name, please. A—Jacob Franks.

Q—Your address. A—5052 Ellis street.

Q—Chicago. A—Chicago.

Q—Do you know Robert Franks, deceased in this case? A—Yes, sir.

Q—What relation was Robert Franks to you. A—My son.

Q—When did you last see Robert Franks alive? A—On the 21st of May, 1934.

Q—About what time? A—About 1 o'clock in the morning.

Q—How was he in good health at that time, was he? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Nothing wrong with his sight, hearing? A—No, sir.

Q—Did he have any physical ailments? A—No, sir.

Q—When was the next time you saw your son, the deceased, Robert Franks? A—The following day.

Q—That was May 22nd. A—The 22nd.

Q—About what time, Mr. Franks? A—About 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Q—And under what circumstances did you see him? A—He was at the morgue.

Q—Describe the circumstances under which you saw the boy the next day, the twenty-second. A—He was dead, lying at the morgue, out south, I don't know just the address.

Q—And you recognized your son, Robert Franks, on May 22 in the morgue of an undertaking establishment on the south side? A—Yes, sir.

Q—And the boy that you recognized, the deceased in this case, Robert Franks, your son, was the same boy you had seen the prior morning at 4 o'clock on May 21, alive? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Will you describe Robert Franks as to size and age, and so forth? A—He was born on the nineteenth of September, 1909. He was small for his age, somewhat slight. I don't know his measurements. I hardly think he measured five feet. Possibly weighed eighty pounds.

Q—The boy that you saw in the morgue on the twenty-second and recognized as your son was dead when you saw him there? A—Yes, sir.

Q—On the twenty-first did you remember how your son was dressed that morning when you last saw him, as to the suit, shoes, stockings, and so forth? A—I do not.

Q—MR. DARRROW—Is that necessary? I object to it, on the ground that there is no dispute about it.

Identifies Boy's Shoes. MR. SAVAGE—I will ask you to look at people's exhibit No. 1, marked for identification, and state whether or not those are the shoes of your deceased son, Robert Franks?

Mr. Savage held up the low cut tan shoes that Robert Franks had worn, seemingly unremoved, the father identified them. He identified the brown felt stocking picked up near the ditch where the body was found, and the belt buckle, blue and white web belt, and the class pin dug up by Richard Loeb himself from the field where the two murderers had buried them.

An attempt by the prosecutor to get into evidence what Mr. Franks had said after missing his son met with objection from Mr. Darrow. Judge

HUNDREDS COULDN'T GET NEAR THE COURTROOM

Long before the hour of the opening of the Loeb-Leopold trial a great crowd had assembled outside the entrance to the Criminal Court building. The curious were hoping that by some hook or crook they might slip by the guards and get within the courtroom. Few were successful. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

THE RANSOM LETTER

Then came the famous ransom letter.

MR. SAVAGE—Did you receive a letter the following morning? A—Yes, sir.

And the letter, threatening death for the boy already dead if $10,000 was not paid, and the envelope addressed to Mr. Jacob Franks, was read into the record.

MR. SAVAGE—Mr. Franks, just going back: The last time you told about seeing your boy alive was about 1 o'clock in the morning on May 21st? A—Yes, sir.

Q—And that was the last time you saw him alive? A—That is the last time I saw him alive.

Q—Now the next time, when you saw him dead, on May 22d, in the morgue of this undertaking establishment, that was in the afternoon? A—Of May 22d.

Court was adjourned at this point for the noon recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At 2 o'clock, when the hearing was resumed, Mr. Franks was again delayed. Dr. Joseph Springer, corner's physician, was called in the meantime and told of the two cuts on the forehead of the dead boy, two bruises on the back of the head, the acid stained face, and the lung conditions, which indicated suffocation.

In your opinion, doctor, he was asked by Assistant State's Attorney John Sharrar: "What was the cause of death?"

"Death was caused from the wounds on the head and suffocation," was the reply.

On cross-examination Attorney Benjamin Bachrach called for the doctor's written report and it was read in evidence.

Dr. Axel F. Benson, corner's physician, was also called and testified that Mr. Gresham had identified the body to him.

Franks Again on Stand.

Then Mr. Franks resumed the stand and the questioning proceeded:

Q—After you received this letter referred to, what, if anything, did you do after that? A—I remained home.

I got a call about 3:30, a telephone call.

Q—Then what did you do? A—The call was for me to jump into a taxi and they had sent me to and to go out to an address on 63d street.

Q—Did you follow the instructions of the telephone conversation about getting into the cab? A—No, by that time I knew my boy was dead.

Promised the $10,000. THE COURT: Q—Did you procure the $10,000? A—Yes.

MR. SAVAGE: Q—In the denominations in the letter? A—Exactly.

Q—What did you do with the $10,000? A—I wrapped it up as per the instructions I received.

Q—And that was when you were awaiting a telephone communication which you received later? A—Yes.

MR. DARRROW: I have no cross-examination.

THE MOTHER TESTIFIES

A hush fell over the courtroom as Mrs. Flora Franks, Robert's mother, entered on the arm of Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, and followed her husband to the stand. She was questioned by Mr. Crowe.

Q—Kindly state your name. A—Mrs. Flora Franks.

Q—Did you have a son named Robert Franks? A—Yes.

Q—How old was he? A—Fourteen.

Q—When was the last time you saw him alive? A—Wednesday noon, May 21.

Q—And where did you see him at that time? A—At home.

Q—Did he have lunch on at that time? A—Yes.

Q—What did Robert Franks do; did he go to school? A—Yes.

Q—What school did he attend? A—Harvard school, between 47th and 46th and Ellis.

Q—Now, your son did not return after he left at noon that day? A—No.

Q—When did you next see him, see his body? A—Friday—Saturday night.

Get Call by Phone.

Q—On Wednesday evening, May 21, 1934, did anybody telephone you at your home? A—Yes.

Q—Did you receive a telephone call? A—I received a telephone call Wednesday evening.

Q—About what time? A—I think it was about 10:30; I am not quite sure about the time.

Q—Will you state what was said to you and what you said over the phone at that time? A—The phone rang and I went to the telephone and they asked for Mr. Franks and I said Mr. Franks was not home, but I was Mrs. Franks.

I asked them what they wanted and they said, "Your son has been kidnapped. He is all right; further news in the morning." I said, "Who is it?" and they said, "Johnson." I wanted to ask something else, but they rang off.

Q—Will you describe the kind of voice? Was it a voice you were familiar with? A—No.

Q—Was it a masculine or feminine voice? A—Masculine.

Q—Was there any other thing about the voice that you noted at the time? A—It sounded like it was a gruff voice.

More Cultured Than Rough. Q—How would you describe it? A—It was more of a cultured voice than a rough voice.

Q—You are familiar with your son's clothing? A—Yes.

Q—I show you a pair of low shoes and ask you who they belonged to? A—My son, Robert Franks.

Q—And this stocking—is that his stocking? A—Yes.

Q—Do you know whether he had a class pin, a school pin? A—Yes.

Q—I will ask you to look at that and state whether you have seen it before. A—I have.

Q—That is your son's class pin? A—Yes.

Q—Did your son have a belt on that day? A—Yes.

Q—I will ask you to look at these two pieces of belt and state whether they were his. A—Yes.

Q—You must talk and not nod your head. I show you a belt buckle and ask you if that was his belt buckle? A—Yes, but there is some writing on there that was not there.

MR. CROWE—Those are the marks I have made for the purpose of identification. That is part of the belt buckle of your son Robert's belt? A—Yes.

THE FIRST LINK

There followed the first of the long chain of witnesses on whose story, in chronological order, State's Attorney Crowe depends for a hanging verdict.

The first stone in the rampart of evidence was laid by J. D. Craven, room clerk at the Morrison hotel.

He told how a "Morton D. Ballard" had registered, and had taken room 1931; how "Ballard" had disappeared, and how his suitcase had been seized.

"The room not being occupied, we made an inspection of the room and found insufficient baggage to carry the account any further, so we checked it out as a skip," declared Craven.

State's Attorney Crowe showed the suitcase and the four books, drawn from the University of Chicago library, and Craven identified them.

It was Richard Loeb who had posed as Ballard at the hotel, as was shown when Thomas Taylor, house detective at the Morrison, identified the four books and the library card in one of them signed "R. A. Loeb." Loeb, it was shown, still owns the hotel $8.20.

Proof of Bank Accounts.

The state began then its proof of the bank accounts which Loeb and Leopold had established in order to finance their plan of crime. Charles E. Ward, cashier of the Hyde Park State bank, told how Leopold this time had posed as Ballard of Peoria, and had put $100 in the bank on May 7; that "Ballard" closed it out by making out a check to "cash" on May 22.

Attorney Bachrach and Mr. Crowe clashed as Ward told of the identification of Leopold in the county jail when the two boys had been taken from the state's attorney's custody.

Mr. Bachrach brought out the fact that Leopold had objected to being identified.

"He did like this," said the witness, and threw his arms before his face State's Attorney Crowe elicited the testimony that Leopold had not been dragged out or manhandled.

Points Out Loeb.

Arthur Doherty, teller at the bank, followed on the stand and pointed out Richard Loeb as the one who had cashed "Ballard's" $100 check. His place was taken by Miss Clara Vinneberg, clerk at the Hyde Park State bank. Her testimony showed how the records of the bank demonstrated the

A—He came in and he bought a slug, wanted to use the telephone and called up, and then he bought some candy and a box of raisins, and he said, "Can I wait here for a telephone call? I expect to be called back," and I said, "Yes, sir," and he sat down there eating his raisins, waiting for his call.

Call Comes for Him.

Q—Was there a telephone call come in that day? A—Yes, sir.

Q—What did he do with reference to that call? A—He answered the phone.

Q—Did he go to the telephone booth and answer it after the phone rang? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Then what happened? A—Then he went out after he got through talking.

Q—How long would you say he stayed in your store waiting for this telephone call? A—Must be about half an hour, three-quarters of an hour, something like that.

Max Tuckerman, a relative of Barish, was called.

Q—Were you in your brother-in-law's place of business on the 9th of May, 1934? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did Richard Loeb tell you in the state's attorney's office what you and your brother-in-law were talking about in your brother-in-law's restaurant on May 9? A—Yes, sir.

Richard Loeb told me that he was at Dave Barish's store and he repeated the conversation I had there, word for word.

The courtroom smiled for nearly the first time when Tuckerman told how Loeb had teased him about having his mustache. Loeb laughed and whispered to Leopold.

Rent-a-Car Episode.

The rent-a-car incident followed, the state showing by three witnesses how Leopold had visited the Michigan avenue office of the company on May 9, how the "Lewis Mason" call was made, and how Leopold took out a Willys-Knight car, drove it a few miles and returned it.

Walter L. Jacobs, president of the company, took the stand.

Q—I will show you a document here, dated May 9, 1934, and signed by the Rent-a-Car people, by K. McBurney and Morton D. Ballard, and ask you what that is. A—It is a lease agreement and application.

Q—Did you see the person who signed it? A—Yes.

Q—When? A—At that time.

Q—Do you see the man in the court who gave the name of Morton D. Ballard and who was in the office on the 9th day of May with this lease agreement? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Will you point him out? A—Leopold rose in his seat before Jacobs had time to indicate him.

Call Up "Mason."

Q—What is anything did you say to Morton D. Ballard when the application was put up to you and he came along? A—We called Calumet 4668 and asked for Lewis Mason, spoke to Lewis Mason, and asked him as to Morton D. Ballard's responsibility and integrity, and he assured us that he was a fit person.

Q—Indicating the defendant, Richard A. Loeb. And that is the man whose account we have just been talking about? A—Yes, sir.

ESTABLISHING CREDIT

It was on May 9 that Leopold, using the "Ballard" alias, visited the Rent-a-Car company with the intention of establishing his credit there. The plan to use a hired car was one of the reasons for the bank account. In order to receive credit, references were needed.

David L. Barish was put on the stand by the state and examined by Assistant State's Attorney Milton D. Smith to establish the fact that Loeb had waited for a telephone in his cigar store and luncheon at 1352 South Wabash avenue on May 9.

The examination proceeded: Q—Was Loeb in your store on the ninth day of May, 1934? A—Yes, sir.

Q—About what time of day? A—At noontime.

Q—Will you just tell what you saw him do while he was in your store?

FRENCH BANDIT GETS GUILLOTINE FOR N. Y. THEFT

Sentenced to Die for Resisting Police.

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune French News Service.) (Copyright 1934 by The Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, July 24.—(AP)—Mourou will pay for his long criminal career with his head. The trial of the bandit for the robbery of the home of Albert Shattuck of New York on April 1, 1932, and for other offenses ended at 6:15 o'clock tonight with a sentence to the guillotine.

The severity of the sentence startled Paris, but it is strictly legal under the French code, which makes armed resistance to arrest punishable by death if there were no mitigating circumstances. Mourou was charged with attempting the murder of Detective Poulain and his two assistants when they arrested him at Gournay-sur-Marne last October for the Shattuck robbery.

The sinister instrument which will end Mourou's epic of crime has not been used in Paris since "Bluebeard" Landru was executed. The morbid appeal which "Mother Guillotine" has always made to the French imagination since the days of the revolution has already made Mourou dominate the front pages of the newspapers, and his execution is expected to create the usual spectacle of all Paris endeavoring to get tickets for the event.

Mourou Calm During Trial.

Mourou preserved his usual polite calm throughout the trial today when he heard physicians testify that all ten members of the Shattuck household certainly would have been dead in a few hours if they had been left in the "black hole" where Mourou and his associates locked them while they rifled the mansion.

His first sign of weakness came when Maitre Aubin, counsel for the state, began to relate the history of the bandit's life, showing his criminal career, which started at the age of 8.

When asked what he wished to say in his own defense Mourou replied: "Nothing, except that I am sorry to have done evil to Mr. Shattuck. He was very kind to me."

Verdict Makes Him Criminally Insane.

When the jury returned with the verdict of "Guilty without extenuating circumstances" Mourou crumpled into a heap inside the prisoners' box. Guards half carried him out at the end of the session, while the crowd in and around the courtroom was noisy with excitement over the severe verdict.

The verdict was variously received, and there is a strong feeling of disapproval, especially as Mourou has consistently denied the crime for which he will lose his head—shooting at the officers who tried to arrest him.

The curious provision in French law which makes the burden of proof fall on the prisoner instead of the prosecution was never more clearly exemplified, as the prosecution never proved that Mourou had shot and the prisoner testified that he did not. He failed to prove his own innocence, however, and the law considers him guilty, in exact reversal of the Anglo-Saxon process.

The Day's Last Witness.

Miss Margaret Fitzpatrick, a stenographer employed by the Rent-a-Car company, was the last witness of the day.

She verified that part of the confession of the two which told of their changing the address of "Ballard" from the Morrison, following the discovery and seizure of the suitcase, to the Hotel Trentier.

At 4 o'clock court adjourned to 10 o'clock today.

LAKE CLAIMS 1; HEAT FELS 6; DOGS BITE 30

Weather Man Promises Relief for Today.

A young man was drowned, six persons were overcome by the heat, and nearly thirty more were bitten by dogs yesterday while the sun was scorching the city to the tune of 90 degrees and better.

Chicago was not the only perspiring municipality, however. Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Des Moines and St. Louis all reported a reading of 90, while New Orleans and several other southern cities reached an even 100 degrees.

Relief in Sight.

Last night the weather man showed signs of relenting. He saw signs of a thunder shower and a northwest breeze, and by this afternoon or evening he expects to show Chicagoans something cooler in the way of weather. Tomorrow, he says, should be marked by moderate temperature again.

Yesterday's drowning victim was 21 year old William McDonald of 2107 Shields avenue. Swimming about 100 feet from shore at the foot of 423 street, he suddenly started, and several hundred other bathers by shouting for help. McDonald sank before swimmers could reach him, and it was not until several hours later that members of the Jackson park coast guard recovered his body.

Victims of Heat.

Among those who were prostrated with Sam Ferrone, 723 Aberdeen street, whose mind was thought to be temporarily unbalanced by the heat. He was taken to the Psychopathic hospital.

Other victims were Harry Drag, 6109 Normal avenue, who was overcome while waiting for a train in Englewood; Ernest Swartz, 1721 Wellington street, who was injured when he fainted at the corner of Clark street and Lawrence avenue; H. E. Goman, 3757 Prairie avenue, who collapsed within three blocks of his home; and Nicholas Zuba, 1119 South Union avenue, and Raymond Groux, 4831 South Elizabeth street, who were overcome at south side bathing beaches.

The majority of those bitten by heat-maddened dogs were children.

Aged Woman, Despondent Over Troubles, Ends Life.

Despondent over ill health and her inability to get work, Mrs. Josie Moeller, 62 years old, 465 North Paulina street, turned on the gas of her single burner plate in the little kitchen of her home, slumped over the flowing gas, and was later found dead.

AWAIT STEEL'S REPLY TO BLOW AT "PLUS" PRICE

Corporation Is Silent on Going to Courts.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Washington, D. C., July 23.—(Special.)—Opinion was divided today as to whether the United States Steel corporation will carry its fight against abolition of Pittsburgh plus to the courts.

Although counsel for the corporation has indicated heretofore that an adverse decision by the federal trade commission would be followed by litigation in the courts, members of the staff of the commission are of the opinion that the legal fight may be abandoned.

The Steel corporation and its subsidiaries, under yesterday's cease and desist order, have a period of sixty days in which to indicate their compliance with the mandate for elimination of the system by which prices on rolled steel products are quoted on a Pittsburgh plus freight rate from Pittsburgh to destination, regardless of whether the shipment is made from a less distant mill.

Three Courses Open.

Three courses are open to the steel corporation. It can indicate its full compliance. It can indicate its compliance with exceptions. It can carry the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for review.

Counsel for the corporation indicated
during the hearings before the commission there was no question that the case would be carried to the courts.
Those familiar with the Steel corporation's position still insist it will be done.

If the case is taken into court a decision by the Circuit Court of Appeals would be followed by the unsuccessful party's seeking a writ of certiorari for a review by the Supreme court of the United States. Inasmuch as both the federal Circuit Courts of Appeals and the Supreme court have actively and adversely to the federal trade commission in several important cases in recent months, it has been understood that counsel for the Steel corporation were eager to obtain a ruling in this case.

Would Fight Commission.

The chief contention of the Steel corporation in the event of an appeal would be that the commission lacked authority to take action.
Staff members of the federal trade commission, however, think the Steel corporation, after its narrow escape at the hands of the Supreme court a few years ago in the steel trust case,
is not anxious to go before that court again. Another view at the commission is that settlement against Pittsburgh plus throughout the west and south is so strong that the Steel corporation will hesitate to defy public opinion further.

If the corporation carries the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals it would do so either in the second judicial circuit, which includes
New York city, or the third circuit, which includes Pittsburgh. In all probability it would require a year and a half or two years to obtain a final decision from the Supreme court. In the meantime the order of the commission would not be effective.

They Wait Counsel's Report.

New York, July 23.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, stated today that no legal action would be taken on the federal trade commission's decision directing abolition of the Pittsburgh plus system until counsel for the corporation makes a report on the case.

"I never have been," Mr. Gary's statement said, "nor never will there be, a question on our part to disregard or ignore the decisions of courts or other governmental officials concerning matters over which they have jurisdiction involving our management or procedure."

Mr. Gary said he did not think there could ever be any final decision on the question that would materially affect the business of the iron and steel producers or their customers.

"The Pittsburgh plus practice, so called," he continued, "was established many years before the United States Steel corporation was organized. The basis for the sale of steel was first used at Philadelphia, I think, in the seventies, and later Pittsburgh became the principal point of production."

BEAUTY EXPERTS URGE LAWS TO GUARD TRADE

Would Have States
Give Licenses.

Laws which will require beauty palor operators to have at least a year of high school work and a six months' course in elementary medicine and hygiene were advocated yesterday by the owners of beauty parlors in forty-nine states, meeting this week at the Marinello building, Tower court.

Louisiana Has Law.

Dr. Nelly B. Cooper of Baton Rouge pointed out that Louisiana has passed a law requiring all beauty operators to show licenses from accredited schools. The law carries a penalty of fine and imprisonment.

Beauty Doctors Know.

The problem of the girl in her teens was taken up yesterday. Mothers who do not make their daughters enter into agencies, who allow them to remain indoors, are to blame for the necessity of makeup for young girls today, they agreed. The modern girl is not so pink cheeked as her older sister was.
The causes are smoking, late dances, girl drinking and late hours. It's all revealed in the beauty parlor, the cos-meticians say.

RUSSIAN CROP FAILURE WORSE THAN IN 1920

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
BERLIN, July 23.—Soviet official organs in Moscow today openly admit that the failure of the crops this year is greater than it was in 1920, the famine year. Harvesters in the Ukraine expect to get only 10 per cent of the normal crop, while crops in Turkistan province and in other districts along the lower Volga are a total loss.

Weather conditions and poor seed grain are held responsible.

Demands of peasants in these regions for government aid have been refused on the ground that there is no money in the treasury. Despite the imminent famine crisis the government has ordered large stocks of grain to be stored in warehouses in the city of Omsk to be shipped to Denmark, and Holland at prices 20 per cent below the American quotations.

In an attempt to check violence against officials by the peasantry, the government has issued special instructions to the cheka, empowering its agents to execute without trial persons attempting to interfere with grain exports.

MRS. SAAL USED $40 DAILY FOR PHONE: WITNESS

Mrs. Violet E. Saal carried on a most expensive "telephone courtship" with Henry T. Roberts, named by Henry G. Saal, her millionaire husband, as co-respondent in his divorce suit, according to testimony at the trial before Judge John J. Sullivan yesterday.

Long distance calls to Roberts in faraway cities cost Mrs. Saal as much as $40 a day, testified Miss Mary E.
Geise, bookkeeper at Mrs. Saal's hotel, the Parkway.

Roberts did not appear in court, as was indicated on Tuesday by Mrs.
Saal, who said he would be present to avenge the black eye given to her attorney, Albert Pink, by Saal's counsel, Charles E. Erbstein. Both attorneys were scrupulously polite and considerate of each other during the hearing, which will be resumed today.

PAY BUGLE TO BLOW TONIGHT AT CAMP CUSTER

Camp Custer, Mich., July 23.—(Special.)—Pay day and camp closing activities hold the interest of guardsmen and reserve officers at Camp Custer
now. The reserve officers, 750 of them, get paid tomorrow night.

The 124th field artillery, from Chicago and Aurora, will have a boxing tournament for camp amateurs the same night.

On Sunday, and again yesterday, the Chicago guardsmen beat a scratch regular team at polo.

Tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. there will be a demonstration of an attack on a front of 800 yards. The battalion has a total of 800 men and will be supported by a machine gun platoon of fifty men, a 47 millimeter gun, a light trench mortar, a 75 millimeter field piece, three tanks, and an airplane.

UNEMPLOYMENT GROWS LESS, SAY LABOR EXPERTS

A prediction that the next few months may be expected to show a marked decrease in the number of jobless in industries throughout the country, was made at a round table discussion yesterday at a convention of the national employment board at the Hotel Sherman.

"Unemployment has taken a turn for the better even during the past two weeks or ten days," declared Miss Grace E. Smith of Boston, who is secretary of the board.

Delegates assigned two causes to the recent employment depression: unsettled conditions in Europe and "the irresponsible attitude of workers following their period of financial exaltation during and immediately after the war."

"The decision is a well earned yet

"PLUS" DECISION TO MAKE GARY STEEL CENTER

Means 30 Million Saving to Midwest Farmers.

will undoubtedly mean lower steel costs. This will reduce the cost of farm implements, and this was one of the reasons which impelled the American Farm Bureau Federation to take an effective and active part in the fight.

"It will also notably reduce building construction costs and the cost of road construction and more important than all else, it will end the practice of making a 'delivered price,' in which other industries have been rapidly emulating steel. When it is remembered that middlemen's profits and charged upon the concealed unearned freight item the savings thus effected, running into hundreds of millions of dollars, is very apparent.

Will Help Farmers.

"If the case is not appealed the immediate result of the decision will be to aid the farmers and other consumers because of lower prices for wire and products such as nails, steel sheets, tin plate and steel tubing and piping.

This will be important to farmers and builders. Owing to the vigorous fight made upon the practice, Pittsburgh plus has been abandoned in the Chicago market on 'nails, shapes, and bars since 1921. It is highly probable it would have been resumed. But the most important effect of this decision is that the plus exacting will never again come into effect on heavy structural material, which is the principal product of the steel mills."

The saving to farmers by the permanent abolition of "Pittsburgh plus"
is set at a minimum of $30,000,000 a year in eleven states alone. For six of the states the estimated saving is:
Illinois ..... $3,000,000
Wisconsin ..... 3,000,000
Michigan ..... 2,000,000
Iowa ..... 2,000,000
Indiana ..... 2,000,000
Minnesota ..... 2,000,000

"The decision is a well earned yet

fine victory for American farmers," said Sam H. Thompson, president of the Illinois Agricultural association and a member of the Illinois "Pittsburgh plus" commission.

$3,000,000 Saving in State.

"It is conservatively estimated the abolition of 'Pittsburgh plus' will save the farmers of Illinois over $3,000,000 a year and approximately the same results will apply to the other great agricultural states. Our farm bureau investigations show that approximately $55,000,000 will be saved each year by American farmers in the aggregate.

"This decision, insuring lower steel costs, will also benefit the taxpayers of the state, as hard roads consume vast quantities of steel. The superintendent of Highways some years ago estimated that the additional cost of Illinois roadways in the state construction program of that time due to Pittsburgh plus was over $500,000. Since then, with expanding road building programs, this would be immeasurably greater if the 'plus' charge were made.

Means More Stable Money.

"Another important effect to the farmers is the assurance of more stable nearby markets, due to greater industrial activity in Illinois towns that have potentialities for steel fabrication. With 'Pittsburgh plus' abandoned these towns will come into their own, and the farmers in the vicinity will feel the benefit in a better nearby home market for their products."

"This victory is conclusive proof that organized effort on the part of farmers is necessary to overcome some difficulties which confront the American farmer. It also demonstrates the wisdom of having farmers on the federal boards and commissions."

DISCOUNT "FLOP" OF MIDDLE WEST TO LA FOLLETTE

Old Party Chieftains Not Worried, They Say.

BY DONALD EWING.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—Both Republican and Democratic chieftains are taking with quite a few grains of salt the glowing reports from La Follette followers that the Wisconsin insurgent will sweep victoriously through the middle west in the November election.

Reports received by President Coolidge and by Clem Shaver, new Democratic national committee chairman, from such states as Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Ohio, and Illinois, report many differences arising between the various factions forming the La Follette group. These reports are of the "too many cooks spoil the broth" type, saying that there are too many factions, such as Socialists, farmers, laborers, near Reds, etc., heading under the La Follette banner for harmony to remain.

Trouble in Kansas.
This is particularly true in Kansas. A split in the "Independent" group there has arisen which, if it is not quickly healed, is looked on as likely to make La Follette a poor third and Coolidge a sure first in that state.

The trouble started over who should be the chief of the La Follette forces and then developed into a bitter engagement over who the La Follette electors should be. During the last few days telegrams from opposing forces have been pouring into headquarters here, each group insisting that it be named officially as the one through which the La Follette state activities must be conducted. Senator Curtis (Rep., Kas.) conferred with President Coolidge today over the Kansas political situation and said Republican victory was assured there. La Follette would, of course, get considerable support there, regardless of any organizational fights, but his votes would come only from the labor element, which normally would be Democratic.

Ohio Farmers for Coolidge.
Walter Brown of Toledo brought the President similar reports from Ohio. La Follette, he said, would poll heavily in the industrial sections, but would get virtually no votes elsewhere. He told Mr. Coolidge that there was no need to worry about Ohio. The farming sections, he said, were not for La Follette.

Hague of Fort Dodge told the President. He did not attempt to discount Brookhart's strength, but insisted that most of the votes cast for Brookhart also would be for Coolidge. Even though it is known Brookhart favors La Follette he will not swing many votes to the Wisconsin senator, said.

Gets Reports From Illinois.
In Illinois even the factional fights are likely to endanger Coolidge, in the opinion of lieutenants who are daily reporting to him. They expect La Follette to poll a good vote, but that it will be taken Davis only. Missouri, the Democratic split over McAdoo, is another middle western state which is reported to the President as not likely to give La Follette anywhere near enough strength for victory.

A similar feeling concerning La Follette's strength is found among Democratic chieftains, though they of course deny that the La Follette vote will come from their ranks.

POLICE BREAK INTO FLAT AND SAVE 4 CHILDREN

Four children were saved from death yesterday when police forced an entrance into the home of Mrs. Tillie Amella, 4229 South Hoyne avenue, and carried them out from the gas filled apartment.

The children, Regina, 8; Louise, 7; Genevieve, 5; and Raymond, 2 years old, were left at home alone, according to neighbors, while the mother, Mrs. Amella, went out in search of work. During their play one of them apparently had opened a gas jet. Slowly the place filled with the gas, until the children were overcome because they were aware of what was wrong. Neighbors called the police, who forced an entrance, and revived the children with a pulmotor.

HOLD MAN TAKEN IN FEMALE GARB FOR MRS. TESMER

Police are checking up to determine whether "John Smith," who was arrested yesterday while masquerading as a woman, is the feminine gun-wielder who fatally shot Richard G. Tesmer, wealthy insurance dealer, more than a year ago.

Wearing flesh colored hose, fancy pumps, a gown and Parisian hat "Smith" aroused the suspicions of Railroad Detective Frank Grogan when he saw him sitting in the women's waiting room at the La Salle street station. He was arrested and taken to the Clark street station where he refused to give his address or account for the feminine attire.

Police say that rings and other valuables have been reported stolen recently from the station wash room.

U. S. Bar Gives Britain Statue of Blackstone

LONDON, July 22.—[By the Associated Press.]—A statue of Blackstone was unveiled today in the Law Courts to "remain for centuries to inspire England as Blackstone inspired America in law."

These were the words with which the British lord chancellor answered George W. Wickersham, former attorney general of the United States, who in unveiling the statue which is the gift of the American bar, referred to Blackstone's commentaries as "the most permanent link between the English speaking peoples and the greatest power behind the laws of the two countries."

URGE CHILDREN SIGN PLEDGE TO BEWARE TRAFFIC

Install New Signals for Pedestrians.

As another child, a boy of 9, suffered injuries that may cause his death, a movement was started to circulate pledge cards among all children of school age, binding them to observe the rules of traffic safety at all times. The injured boy, Albert Smith of 3422 McLean avenue, was running in the street after a ball when he was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Kettlestrings, 332 North Grove avenue, Oak Park. The boy was taken to the Keystone hospital, where physicians said he had only a slim chance for recovery. Kettlestrings was not held by the police.

Ask Schools Aid.

Officials of the Chicago Motor club called upon William McAndrew, superintendent of schools, with a request that he lend aid in placing one of the safety pledge cards in the hands of every child in the city.

"Education and constant repetition of the rules of safety had a most favorable effect upon the mind of a child," Mr. McAndrew was told. The officials declared that 225 children were killed during 1923. The peak of the death figures is the ages of 5 and 6, indicating that children starting their first year at school are most regardless of the automobile danger.

More playgrounds are needed, so that children might be kept off the streets, the motor club officials urged.

Try Out New Devices.

With one "auto-pedestrian" traffic signal already installed, and pronounced highly successful, and with Chief of Police Collins preparing to give the "third whistle" plan, a thorough trial, it appears that Coroner Oscar Wolf's proposal to "give the pedestrians a chance" eventually will be adopted on all important street intersections.

Members of the West Park board yesterday watched the operation of the newly installed signal tower at Washington and Ashland boulevards. They were enthusiastic over its success and immediately planned to install similar signals at busy street intersections on the west side park system.

Four Are Injured.
The "get ready" flash has been changed to read "walk." This is the signal for the pedestrian to make his crossing while all vehicular traffic is halted. It is followed by the "go" signal for east and west traffic and then for north and south traffic.

Four persons were injured, one probably so badly he may die, when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a motor truck driven by Charles McNeil, 4011 North Francisco avenue, Junior Angelica, 6, 738 Diversey parkway, is the most severely injured.

In a collision last night of his automobile with a Roosevelt road car at South Fairfield avenue, Walter Amendt, 28, 4600 Greenwood avenue, suffered a fractured skull.

Liking People

Among those for whom life yields its richest treasure is he who most sincerely likes the most people.

The faculty of liking those about us is one of the inestimable privileges of life. Such a boon may well be craved by practical man and dreamer.

And have you noticed how business institutions reflect, in many indefinable ways, various qualities of mankind? Have you not sometimes been distinctly aware of a sense of well wishing in your behalf emanating from the prosaic surroundings of a business institution of which you may have been only a casual patron?

Business is not always a matter of dollars and cents. Especially in a business so intimate as that of providing daily food, there is opportunity for the growth of considerable rational sentiment. Henrici's is famous no less for the enduring deep friendships it has won than for the quality of the foods it serves and for the great volume of its patronage.

THE $250,000,000 LEMONS.

Mr. Hearst's American says that The Tribune is mistaken. It has not tied a can to its old friend, municipal ownership of surface lines, and it has not started chasing Mayor Dever up the street. It is merely two or three yards ahead of the mayor trying to coax him along with an ox chain. It wants him to chuck Henry Blair out on his collar button with his $162,000,000 demand for the surface properties and to deal with Mr. Insull for his $88,000,000 of elevated lines.

Mr. Hearst's American thinks that if Mr. Insull turns a glazy eye on the mayor and wants his price, the mayor can turn to President Mitchell of the National City bank, New York. The bank and its subsidiary, the National City company, control the elevated securities, and if Mr. Insull proves too hard boiled, a gentle touch will make Mr. Mitchell break and run all over the plate.

There is a forward looking hopefulness about this, but we fear that Mr. Mitchell has framed in his office the motto of the Wall Street Decatur: "Try and get it," alongside its golden rule: "Always see to it that the sucker never gets an even break." We do not wish to poison the cup of hope, but misgivings naturally arise.

Mr. Hearst's American believes Mr. Dever is quite right in not doing the only thing which he has it completely in his power to do—start building subways. The one thing which could be done and the only thing which is worth doing is the chief thing not to do.

Mr. Lawson's Daily News, disagreeing with Mr. Hearst's American and holding that Mr. Dever hasn't wasted his time in office, agrees that the city should not do the only thing it is free to do. Mr. Lawson's Daily News believes that Mr. Dever is progressing and getting along very well. The progress visible from our office is the State street bridge sticking up in the air, with its accustomed street car and vehicular traffic skipping around the loop like a snail's movement of scared ants.

Mr. Lawson's Daily News is issued from a building which must have escaped the Chicago fire and from premises which probably came in by the Illinois and Michigan canal when it was first opened. It conceives of progress in terms of glacial periods, and Chicago's situation thus contemplated is one of sitting pretty.

The Tribune has been in about six buildings in Mr. Lawson's time and finds it takes constructive hustling to keep one jump ahead of the requirements of metropolitan development.

In The Tribune's opinion the city administration, meaning more than Mayor Dever's part of it, has hesitated so long to make rapid transportation by putting it under ground that now it is scared and afraid to undertake it. The trouble is cold feet, and some of them are journalistic. Mr. Hearst's American says that of course any one could take the traction fund and build subways. A great mistake. Seemingly no one can. Mr. Lawson's News warns against the lure of this money and the lure of a subway. It happens that the aldermen who framed the ordinance seventeen years ago intended that such use should be made of it.

The fear is that the city will build subways and have nothing to put in them. There is a laugh in that. The assumption is that the city can deal successfully in getting obsolescent properties away from citizens who will be protected in the courts to the last penny of their rights, but could not deal with either surface or elevated lines for the operation of municipally owned subways, although the one which did not get the use of them would be busted.

In its present dealings with Mr. Blair and Mr. Insull the city is in a barrel. It has nothing else on. It can't bluff or threaten or even reason effectively. Why should Blair or Insull pay attention to offers which do not give what they intend to get? There is no reason and they do not pay any attention.

If Mr. Dever got these properties, both time-worn and in different degrees unsatisfactory, the city would have nothing in the way of service which it does not possess now. It would have sunk its cash and its credit without getting anything for the car users that they do not have now.

Mr. Blair wants $162,000,000. Mr. Insull wants $88,000,000. The city has or soon will have $45,000,000. Suppose Mr. Dever shaves the price and then sinks approximately all the city can borrow in running Mr. Blair's cars and Mr. Insull's cars. The lemon has only a different name.

When the city's cash and credit go into subways the city will be putting its efforts into rapid transit. It is not suggested that the city try to build up and operate a competing system. It is proposed that the city deal with the two companies and that in doing so it hold high cards instead of deuces.

Mr. Insull may be willing to carry Mr. Blair over the line now, but he'll not be so charitable when it becomes apparent that the company which comes to terms with a city owning subways is a going concern and the other is a dud. The Tribune is not for the purchase of $250,000,000 worth of junk.

THE SCANDAL OF OUR MURDER RECORD.

The crime commission again calls attention to the murder record of this city. It is a record which shames us in the eyes of the world, and presents a problem which we are neglecting at our peril. The commission points out that the murder trend is upward, and has been upward for some time. "With the exception of Italy," says the commission, "no other country measurably approaches the United States in the murderous tendency of its people, and Italy has one-half as many homicides per capita as the United States. Chicago has proportionately more than three times as many homicides as Italy."

The Tribune has repeatedly appealed for a concerted and determined effort to deal with this overshadowing menace. We have discussed and exposed its causes and measures of correction of cure. We have constantly exposed criminality and its extensive ramifications, its alliances and favoring conditions. And we shall not cease to do so until murder and violence are reduced to the minimum which a civilized community, a great city worthy of world fame, can self-respectfully tolerate.

We urge again concerted action by the authorities and appropriate representative bodies to map out, initiate, and carry on radical and comprehensive measures of reform. We suggest that the crime commission, the Chicago Bar association, the attorney general, the state's attorney, the chief of police, the chief justice of the criminal branch of the Circuit court, and Associate Justice De Young of the Supreme court form a special committee for this purpose. We include Mr. Justice De Young because, as we have said before, the consideration of problems of enforcement of criminal law in a great city requires the special knowledge of our conditions which downstate members of our high court of review naturally do not have, with the result that the handling of cases often produces delays and evasions of essential justice and add seriously to our demoralized state. At any rate, a body such as we have suggested is necessary to formulate and lead an aggressive campaign to make our application of criminal law so expeditious and certain that crimes of violence in this community cease to be a scandal and menace. Back of such a community would be found the full support of the public, and the effect upon our deplorable situation would at once appear.

THE END OF PITTSBURGH PLUS.

With the abolition of Pittsburgh plus one more dangerous effort to establish the principle of internal tariff in America goes into history. Wisdom. It may be hoped, will prevent Mr. Gary from carrying it off further.

Thirty-two western and southern states joined against this economic vassalage to eastern finance. The five year fight, in which Mrs. Tansu has been a leader, was critical in the economic development of the country. The federal trade commission now has written its conclusion.

For steel is a basic industry. It underlies the costs of building and of manufacturing, of labor and of farm products. A fixation of steel prices prejudicial to the west for steel produced in the west is a misdirection of industrial benefits that must result disastrously.

What is Pittsburgh plus? The United States Steel corporation controls 50 per cent of our rolled steel supply. It has many mills in various places. The price for the steel is the price at Pittsburgh plus the freight from Pittsburgh to Chicago minus the freight from the steel actually is produced.

Suppose a steel order from Chicago comes in. The steel will be produced say, at Gary. But the price of that steel will be the price of steel at Pittsburgh plus the freight from Pittsburgh to Chicago minus the freight from Gary to Chicago.

Such a system obviously disrupts the law of supply and demand. It is possible only in a monopolized industry. It is a tariff on western industry and building in favor of an eastern industrial and financial group. Last year it cost farmers in eleven western states $99,999,999 more for steel products.

The prosperity of this country is founded in its industrial mobility and distribution. Pittsburgh plus endeavors to offset the good of decentralized industrial production. When Chicago produces steel, Pittsburgh plus would make Chicago pay as it Pittsburgh produced it. By financial control it would divert the benefits of home industries to the east.

The federal trade commission's ruling is critical in the development of the west. It should stand as a precedent. It is a declaration of economic independence. July 21 will be an economic Fourth of July.

The Other Side

JOHN W. DAVIS.
[New Orleans Times-Picayune.]

Whatever the political effect of the long deadlock and furious wrangling of the Democratic convention upon the fortunes of the party and the candidate, it could not have selected from among those considered a man better fitted to discharge the duties of President.

Broadly experienced, with service as congressman and as ambassador, a brilliant lawyer whose practice has ranged from representing great corporations to representing great labor unions, highly educated, noted for his personal charm, he has gained distinction and untarnished good repute in every phase of a varied life.

In spite of all the prophecies of calamity, in spite of all the malign influences which have for the last two weeks been threatening the Democratic party with apparently unescapable disaster, the convention, almost delirious as it was by the time the one hundred and third ballot was reached, nominated its best man. John W. Davis, who when the struggle began appeared only as one of the best of the available dark horses, now shines as an unexpected star in a dark and stormy night.

He faces a hard problem, a much harder problem than he would have faced had his victory come after two days instead of after two weeks. He has almost as many wounds to heal among his own soldiers as he has wounds to inflict upon the enemy. But there is always the hope that the bitterness of the internal conflict will be forgotten in the excitement of the coming campaign. Doubtless Mr. Davis' diplomatic experience will stand him in good stead.

Louisiana's delegation deserves credit for its part in the convention. By some wise advice or happy accident it lighted early upon the best man offered. It refused to become excited or to take part in the quarreling. It stuck by its choice, and its choice finally was the choice of the party.

How to Keep Well.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed, Dr. Evans will not make a diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

COLORS IN OPERATING ROOMS.

It is suggested that the time has come to abandon the pearly white color for the operating room and everything within it. This color scheme was adopted because it helped to guarantee cleanliness. It was born of Listerism and the general demand that operating rooms should be on a standard of freedom from bacteria, hitherto undreamed of.

No more kitchens, dining room tables, restaurants, dairies and bakeries are lined and covered by spotless white tile and something approaching operating room cleanliness has been attained.

In the operating rooms the principles of cleanliness are so well established that some authorities think the time has come to abandon the shiny whites and to gain other advantages by the use of other colors. They think the operating room personnel are so thoroughly proud and self-respecting that they no longer need white walls as reminders.

There are values in light which the old operating rooms did not take advantage of. Dr. P. J. Flagg proposes the following color schemes. The floor, wainscoting and tiling should be of blue or green. The walls should be of ivory or cream. The illumination, where diffuse daylight does not supply the entire need, should be with Masda lamps. The light of this lamp is a yellow and it gives a tint to tissues which is about that given by just the right daylight illumination. This is not true of the light given by some of the so-called day lamps. When a surgeon views the tissues he is operating on, he must see them as they are, with the minimum change in appearance due to tinting and coloring due to lights. For instance, the mercury vapor light which printers prize, the incandescent light which the body tissues which would wholly mislead a surgeon who was operating by that light. Careful, scientific experiments with the yellow light from Masda lamps show it to be free from objection.

Gown, gauges and towels and sheets should be a definite bluish green. Reflections into the field of operation from blue-green colored towels give just the right impression of cleanliness.

Probably few surgeons or hospital superintendents who will read this have not read in the Modern Hospital the full article from which it is drawn. This is written for the general reader in order to make two points.

First, operating rooms have such high

MRS. BOB IS TO BE "FIGHTING BOB'S" WOMAN MANAGER

And Madison Will Be the Headquarters.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—Plans are under way to make Madison, Wis., official headquarters for at least one branch of the La Follette campaign, and the director of that branch is going to be Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the senator.

Madison, while not likely to be the senator's own headquarters, is going to be the directing point for women's activities in his drive for the presidency.

Mrs. La Follette already has taken over most of the women's campaign work, and when she returns to Madison, probably next month, she will keep it up. While "Fighting Bob" is out drumming up votes, she will be pushing the plans to get the women to the polls and to get them to vote for her husband.

Mixes Home with Politics.

Mrs. La Follette has started her work. Almost daily she receives women from various organizations. She isn't the office type of woman, who spends her days dictating to stenographers, but the type who mingles home life and political life in the belief that they are very much alike.

"The state of the home depends very much on the state of the nation," she said. "A woman should take an interest in her country and its affairs, for without a happy country there can't be happy homes. Every woman should know enough about politics to know who to vote for—and then she should go out and cast her vote."

So Mrs. La Follette receives her political visitors in her home, sometimes at tea, sometimes for luncheon, and sometimes there is knitting as well as politics.

Recently Mrs. Burton Wheeler, wife of the vice presidential nominee, has been in conference with Mrs. La Follette and Mrs. Wheeler will help in organizing the women. Mrs. Wheeler may go to Madison when her husband goes stumping but it is more likely that she will go to her Montana home and help organize the women of the northwest states.

Mrs. Wheeler a Home Politician.

Senator La Follette considers his wife of inestimable value to his political plans, and Senator Wheeler's opinion of his wife's political judgment is shown in the fact that she it was who really made him accept the vice presidential nomination.

The day it was formally offered him by the La Follette national committee, he at first firmly refused. When he went home to dinner that night he still was negative in his answers, but after dinner one of the La Follette leaders called at his home.

"Are you going to accept, Burt?" he asked.

"I suppose I'll have to," answered the senator. "Mrs. Wheeler says it's the thing to do, and she's always right."

KILLS SELF BY HANGING

The body of Herman Novara, 40 years old, was found hanging in his room at 3301 West 22nd street yesterday. Police said he had been dead for several days.

BOARD STEPPED IN PREMATURELY, SAY RAIL MEN

Will File Protest at the Hearing Today.

A motion protesting that the United States rail labor board acted prematurely in assuming jurisdiction of the wage controversy now on between the western lines and their engineers and firemen will be presented, it is expected, this morning by the unions at the opening of the hearing before the board. Attorney Donald R. Richberg, who has been in conference daily with the union heads, will present the motion, it is said.

While it is within the possibilities that the ninety general chairmen of the unions involved will go even farther and refuse to testify at the hearing, the indications were yesterday that they will submit to the subpoena recently issued by the board; in which case the motion would serve merely as a record of the brotherhood's disapproval of investigation of the dispute by the board.

Should the union men stand pat, however, declining to testify, it is understood that the board, in pursuance of provisions of the transportation act, will petition the United States District court to hold the union leaders in contempt.

The union men argue that no suspension of traffic is threatened because of the controversy, that, though their parleys with representatives of the roads proved fruitless, they still have hope of gradually ironing out the differences with the various lines individually. The board contends that each line interested has maintained

WINDS ARE GRAVE FOR SURGEON OF THE SEVEN SEAS

New York, July 23.—The ashes of Dr. William Davis, said to have been the best known surgeon on the seven seas, today were scattered to the winds of the South Atlantic in the vicinity of the equator, in accordance with his wishes. It was announced in a wireless message from Capt. John Williams of the Lamport & Holt liner Vauban.

The ship was stopped, with the entire crew on deck at attention, while Capt. Williams read the committal service.

Dr. Davis died at his home here shortly before the Vauban sailed.

That no such individual parleying is scheduled.

The roads and the men readily came to an agreement as to wages, it is understood, the deadlock resulting when the question of rules and working conditions was taken up.

Some observers saw yesterday a forecast of what attitude the board may perhaps take in the dispute when its decision granting time and a half for all overtime work after eight hours was granted the 10,000 employees of the American Express company.

I overbought on these fine Fall and Winter woollens and I must sell goods to pay my bills so as to get my full discounts.

Whether you are a business man, professional man, or a working man it will pay you to buy your Fall Suit during my $50 Sale. For $50 you'll get a made-to-measure suit that is guaranteed to fit perfectly—guaranteed linings—best workmanship and extra pants free just as if you paid $100 in the busy season. You have your choice of the newest and finest imported woollens that just arrived—in the latest shades and patterns—beautiful designs and highest quality.

You can have your suit now or I will hold it for you until you want it. BUT PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW. You'll get a better suit because it will get more attention now than later and you'll save many dollars.

BIG CHIEFS OF ILLINOIS C. O. P. IN LOVE FEAST

South Adroitly Maintains Harmony.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Chairman Frank L. Smith's diplomacy was given credit for the smooth, friendly character that marked the meeting of the Republican state central committee at the Congress hotel yesterday.

Just a Love Feast: These in charge thought it necessary to lock the doors against newspaper men while the management of the committee's activities during the campaign was discussed, but even this problem, considered Col. Smith's first hurdle as Gov. Ten Small's manager, was passed to the agreement satisfaction of everybody present.

He divided up the committee places between Small and anti-Small forces early in the session, thereby erasing any possible suspicion that the governor's followers might be inclined to "hog" things as a matter of self-protection. Then he called upon the members who were guests of the committee. They seemed to be unanimous in urging support of the Republican ticket in its entirety. And so there wasn't a bit of trouble during the meeting.

Better than It Was Hoped. If any real steps toward cooperation in Cook county are taken, it is the general opinion that, with the state committee started evenly on its preliminary work, the Republican organization will be in much better shape in Illinois than the average prophet had admitted possible.

The danger in the woman situation had arisen because Mrs. Alvin T. Hart had requested the selection of a woman as vice chairman of the state committee and this had been construed as a plan to sidetrack Mrs. McCall McCormick, national committeewoman, and place control of the pro-Coolidge activities in the hands of a woman from the Small camp.

According to Chairman Smith's statement at the close of the executive session the committee authorized him to create a women's organization in the state outside Cook county similar to the men's state committee, leaving the situation in Chicago dependent upon the outcome of the men's negotiations.

There was no decision concerning the date for opening the campaign, but Col. Smith was authorized to arrange for the opening of headquarters to start other organization work. Almost all of the candidates, including

U. S. AUTHORITIES STUDY HIGHWAY TRANSPORTATION

Chicago may easily qualify as the highway freight center of the United States, according to federal authorities who launched a new investigation yesterday to discover just how important truck transportation from the Chicago terminal is to national commerce.

The study, which will probably extend to Indianapolis, Detroit, Louisville, Milwaukee, and other commercial centers, was ordered by Prof. J. G. McKeen, chief of the U. S. bureau of economics for the division of highway transportation, and several days ago from Washington to check over the first results of the joint government and county highway survey now well along on Cook county roads, and has remained to work out the new transportation survey which is expected to extend over some eight months as a government measure.

Accurate information as to the amount of truck traffic, the kind of freight carried, routes used, points of departure and destination, ownership, profits and like data, will be gathered. All trucks in this area will be enumerated by capacity and listed as to ownership and maps will be prepared showing the principal sources of highway freight in connection with railroad facilities and industries.

Gov. Small, Charles S. Deneen, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, Secretary of State L. L. Emmerson, and State Treasurer Oscar Nelson, nominee for auditor, were present.

National Chairman Butler plunged into a mass of work waiting for him at headquarters. One of his first engagements was a conference with Gen. Charles G. Dawes, vice presidential nominee, concerning campaign plans. Butler said there had been many requests for speaking dates for Gen. Dawes and said that probably one of his first appearances after his notification will be in Maine, which votes in September.

SWEITZER WILL MANAGE FIGHT OF COL. SPRAGUE

BY PARKE BROWN.

Enthusiasm over the candidacy of Col. Albert A. Sprague for the United States senate has led Robert M. Sweitzer into a new field. He is to manage the Sprague campaign.

Col. Sprague made the announcement yesterday with expressions of pleasure that were exceeded only by the declarations of the county clerk that he had accepted his new burden as a "labor of love." He predicted success for his candidate and said that his campaign already is under way, largely as the result of activities of former service men.

"I have admitted at all times," said

Col. Sprague, "that I was a greenhorn in politics, and that I entered it only because of the argument that I was needed. But for a state campaign the help of an experienced man, in whom the people have confidence, is a necessity, and I am overjoyed that Mr. Sweitzer has consented to conduct my fight."

County Clerk Sweitzer said he repeatedly had offered to do anything and everything in his power to aid the Sprague candidacy and that he was extremely complimented by his new "promotion."

"Of course I have plenty of work now," he said, "but I shall undertake this as a labor of love. The United States senate needs men like Al Sprague. We need something more than lawyers and professional politicians there. A business man such as he is will be of inestimable value as a member of the executive board of that great corporation, the United States."

Al Sprague's record has been one of service. His creed is a creed of service. Our soldiers and sailors know his record in the war and the record of his work for them since the war.

DRAGNET IS OUT FOR O'DONNELL, DECKMAN SLAYER

Police Ordered to Bring In Beer Gang.

With the death yesterday of Alfred C. Deckman, police were given orders to round up Walter O'Donnell, notorious as one of the "O'Donnell brothers" of beer war fame, and his gang of five other members. They were first arrested after an attack described by the police as "primitive savagery," in which Deckman was shot through the back.

Deckman, a salesman for a sewing machine company, and a friend, Earl Cooper, employed by the Public Utilities company and living at 325 South Robey street, were on their way home from a party on the south side, according to the police, when they met the O'Donnell gang at Garfield boulevard and LaSalle street.

Shot Without Provocation. Without provocation, O'Donnell ran them to the curb. Deckman is said to have demanded, "What's the big idea?"

"We'll show you," one of the gang yelled, and then fired several shots at the Deckman car, hitting Deckman in the back. Cooper, who had gotten out of the car, was badly "beaten up" by others of the gang.

Attracted by the sound of the shooting, Sgt. Michael McFadden and his squad captured the six almost "red handed."

Gang Is Released. They appeared Tuesday in the South Clark street court for a preliminary hearing and the case was continued until Aug. 5, to await the outcome of Deckman's condition.

Now that the charge will be murder, the police fear that some of the gang might "blow the town." All of them are out on bonds. For this reason the orders were given at the bureau yesterday "to bring them in."

Real Estate Operator Held as Confidence Man

Francis Tibort, who operates the Park Manor Real Estate company at 301 East 75th street, was locked up at Grand Crossing station yesterday after Policemen Byrnes and Robinson arrested him on a charge of swindling his customers out of approximately $17,000. He is said to have taken initial payments on bungalows, and then failed to complete the transaction. He was held in $10,000 bonds.

BRAZIL REFUSES TRUCE; RENEWS DRIVE ON REBELS

200,000 Residents of Sao Paulo Flee.

SANTOS, Brazil, July 23.—(By Associated Press.)—The Sao Paulo revolutionists are reported on reliable authority to have failed in efforts to enter into negotiations with the Brazilian government relative to an armistice. President Bernardes having announced that the rebels must face the penalties of the Brazilian laws.

The president of the foreign chamber of commerce of Sao Paulo acted as intermediary for the revolutionists, who demanded that in addition to an armistice the government give a guarantee that no reprisals would be taken and that the revolutionists be restored to their original status.

The government's reply was to renew the vigor of its action, and its force are said now to be gaining advantageous positions around the city. The federalists are reported to be continuing their artillery attack on the rebel outposts and other positions in the Sao Paulo industrial section, seized by the rebels in the early stages of the outbreak. The rebels are abandoning and the federalists occupying these positions, the report states.

Capture Rebel Airplane. Federal troops today captured the airplane which recently flew over Santos scattering propaganda literature. American observers in Sao Paulo state that the revolutionists are showing nervousness as a result of a failure of the government to agree to an armistice and also to their lack of success in obtaining the consent of any leading political figure to accept the presidency tendered by the rebels.

Foreign business interests in Sao Paulo are in sympathy with the government, according to the latest reports from that city, and indicate a feeling that the government is correct in refusing to agree to an armistice.

200,000 Flee from Sao Paulo. American and other foreign firms in Santos are contributing generously to the relief fund for the Sao Paulo refugees. The first day's total Tuesday was $20,000 in gold.

A government relief train left today for the Sao Paulo region bearing doctors and nurses and government authorities to study the situation for the purpose of establishing food stations and field hospitals. It is estimated that more than 200,000 citizens have left Sao Paulo, many of them fleeing into the interior and crowding into the small cities, to which the Santos relief funds are being sent to supply the refugees with the necessary food and shelter.

Advices from the front declare that the casualties among the government troops are small. Reinforcements of regular army contingents are continuing to arrive on the scene.

SECOND SUSPECT IN SLAYING OF ARMY MAN HELD

Nashville, Tenn., July 23.—Frank Harrell, sought as an accomplice in the murder of Maj. Samuel H. McLeary at Cheraw, S. C., on July 2, is a prisoner here and has confessed, according to Chief Robert Sidebottom of the detective department. He admitted he was with Mortimer King, already under arrest on the charge of murder, when the killing took place. The interior and crowding into Sidebottom said, and is quoted as saying King did the killing.

"We planned nothing," Harrell is quoted as saying. "A lot of cars passed us, and we hailed them, but none stopped until this army guy came along."

"He stopped, and we got in. I got in front with the major, and King was in the back. I guess we rode sixty or seventy miles, talking about the army."

"All at once King punched the major in the back, and when we turned around I saw he had a gat in the major's face. 'Stop the car,' said King. 'Are you serious?' the major said. 'I sure as hell am,' King told him, and the major stopped the car. 'King made me get out and he drove me into the woods with the major. The major didn't beg any, he just told King that as a former soldier he ought to respect an army officer. King just told him to go ahead. I walked just a little behind the major."

The Man in the Shadow

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS

Derek Stakeham is sentenced to prison for the Pendall murder, his trial and conviction a waste of time. He had been on his way home from Cape Town, South Africa, when he had met and fallen in love with Cecily Pendall. As Cecily had been about to embark for London with Derek, a few days later Pendall was murdered, and Derek, under the name of Lord Stakeham, was tried and sentenced for the crime. He had not notified his family of his return to England, and he had not been recognized as Lord Stakeham. Derek knew the man who had actually committed the murder was two former associates of Pendall's, Dickson and Carole.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

AUNT EMMY.

Her ladyship, a trim parlormaid informed Derek, had not yet gone to bed. "Follow me," he said to Cecily. It was no time for formal behavior or the nice observance of points of etiquette. He thrust his way past the parlormaid into the drawing room, Cecily following.

Lady Maoul from force of habit glanced up as the door opened though she could no longer see clearly across the room. A venerable little lady, looking, in the recesses of a huge armchair, even smaller than she really was. A little wanted in her figure—one of those childless wives that have yet the genius of the mother.

"Hullo, Aunt Emmeline!" exclaimed Stakeham. "Own up that I'm the last person on earth you expected to see and that you're terribly angry with me for bursting in unceremoniously at this time of night."

"Dear old Aunt Emmeline!"

"My dear boy!" exclaimed Lady Maoul, giving him her cheek to kiss. "I'm delighted to see you and you know nothing you could do would ever surprise your old aunt. We all thought you were in Africa."

"With good reason, too. I've come back on a whirlwind! We'll talk about that later. In the meantime, let me introduce Cecily."

Lady Maoul was startled. Her falling sight had not noticed the girl who was standing in the middle of the room.

Stakeham took Cecily by the hand.

"This is Cecily, Aunt Emmeline—Miss Cecily Pendall. Cecily, I should explain, has promised to marry me right away, Aunt Emmeline."

"Well—how do you do, my dear! Pardon me, but—Derek really has surprised me this time. He never breathed a word to any of us."

Stakeham waited a moment while the two women greeted each other. It gave him a queer little thrill of pleasure to see Cecily welcomed by a woman of his own family. Then he came abruptly to his point.

"Aunt Emmeline, will you let Cecily stay here tonight? Her plans and mine all got mixed up, and the result is she is absolutely at a loose end in town and there's no one to take her to but you."

"Why, of course!" Lady Maoul was saying, while Stakeham noticed Cecily was acutely embarrassed.

Before he could say anything, Cecily was speaking in her clear, liquid voice.

"Lady Maoul, I really must object. Derek rushed me here and I consented to come before I realized what I was doing. It is impossible to meet you for the first time and then immediately ask you to put me up."

"My dear child," said Lady Maoul, firmly, "you feel at a disadvantage, but there's really no reason why you should. You see, I happen to know Derek. In some ways better than you can possibly know him. To me there is nothing surprising in anything he does—though I admit I was a little startled when he suddenly told me you were about to get married. Won't you sit down? It's all just like him."

"It's no good your pretending to disapprove, auntie," cut in Stakeham in mock reproach. "You know mother did the same thing and you helped her do it. You're going to help us, aren't you?"

"Of course, I am, you rude boy, if you need any help, which I don't suppose for a moment you do!" said the old lady. "Have you told your mother?"

"Er—no. There's hardly been time. You see, our plans miscarried and I came home suddenly and had to rush around and I found Cecily at a loose end, and—"

"And, in point of fact, you forgot," said Lady Maoul, highly amused. "You'll have a lot of trouble in civilizing him, my dear," she added to Cecily. "And don't let him take you out to one of those awful African swamps. But now, tell me, when are you going to be married?"

"I'm not quite certain at the moment whether it is tomorrow or the next day," answered Stakeham hastily. "I'll find out and ring up tomorrow."

"But the ban! protested Lady Maoul.

"We're not going to have any," Stakeham assured her blandly. "We're going to do it by special license—as mother did. And it's got to be a dead secret for the present, auntie. Just you and mother and—possibly Uncle Richard. You see, people would laugh—they'd say it was romantic and absurd."

"Romantic, indeed, whereas it's the most prosaic affair imaginable," laughed Lady Maoul ironically. "How splendid of you both!" she added with girlish enthusiasm. "I'm so pleased I hardly know what to do. I'll own up now that I always had a haunting dread that Derek would be an incurable bachelor."

"And you're glad he's going to marry me!" exclaimed Cecily impulsively. "O, you are good. You don't even know me!"

"My dear, I know all I need know about you," said Lady Maoul with the faintest touch of seriousness. "And that is that Derek wants to marry you. Stakeham was beside the old lady and kissing her on the forehead."

"Dear old Aunt Emmeline!" he muttered. "Cecily may be getting a rotten husband but she's on a thundering sound thing when it comes to aunts!"

"Silly boy!" said Lady Maoul, unable nevertheless to hide her intense gratification. "Help me up. I'm going to see that Redford has the spare room ready."

"Don't you bother, old dear, let me give the order," said Stakeham. "You'll make a bad husband, Derek," said his aunt. "There are times when a woman doesn't want to be helped, and this is one of them. Stay where you are. I shan't let me have a good long stare tomorrow. Keep Derek from getting into mischief until I come back."

Stakeham closed the door behind her and turned to Cecily.

"She's rather charming, isn't she?" he asked.

"She's a perfect darling!" He took a step towards her and whispered:

"You heard what I said? By special license tomorrow or the next day. You are willing?"

"Yes, Derek. Anything." He held her in his arms, praying it might be he had chosen for her the best of two evils.

"Now listen to me, child—your left all your things behind so you'll have to do some shopping tomorrow. I'll send you round some money by special messenger and you're to spend it all by lunch time. You understand me? I'm going to be the imperious, bullying type of husband and you disobey me at your peril! Get all the money spent in the morning and be back here by lunch time, when I shall turn up and tell you the next move."

While he was speaking he had crossed the room to his aunt's desk and pulled down the flap.

"I want your signature," he told her. "Write it here."

"Yes, Derek, but why—"

"Because I want to open a banking account for you, littlest." He placed the pen in her hand. "Just write 'Cecily Stakeham'."

"O, Derek. I'm sure it's bad luck!"

"Superstitious little thing! . . . By Jove, doesn't it look topping?—good night, darling!"

He forced himself to leave the room and in the corridor, directed by the maid of Lady Maoul's voice, found her supervising the work of the parlormaid and the cook, pressed into service.

"Behind your back, auntie," he said, "we've agreed that you're a darling. Good night. I've asked myself to lunch tomorrow."

It's a Tom Mix and the Boy Still Rides

Otherwise There Isn't Much to Say for It.

"THE HEART BUSTER"
Produced by William Fox.
Directed by Jack Conway.
Presented at the Monroe Theater.

BY MAURINE WATKINS.
If you want a "serious comment" on life or a problem play don't select "The Heart Buster."

But if you're a Tom Mix fan—The plot's impossible—who cares? It gives Tom Mix a chance to ride and ride and ride!

The characters are unreal—what's the odds? There's Tony, the wonder horse, who's a streak across a white plain—and a friend in trouble!

Direction? Photography? They're forgotten as the road leads on and on!

But even by Tom Mix standards his golden anniversary picture (the fiftieth he's made for Fox) doesn't quite make the grade. Derek doesn't exactly turn him into a ray of light, but he does "do" society for a portion of the film, and Tom as a cake eater—well, he's a wonderful rider!

But even with those wasted moments you see him overtake a fast mail with Tony, knock down a dozen or so men in a miraculous escape, drive a car like a demon over hills, through streams, and kidnap a dozen or so ministers.

All to keep the girl he loves from marrying a wicked foreigner with a misplaced eyebrow. Said gentleman being also equipped with wife who appears at the altar JUST in time to stop the ceremony—quite in the good old orthodox fashion of the ochre books.

Ether Ralston is a pretty, inoffensive heroine who takes her rescue in the feminine way—and changes her mind. Tom Wilson, the colored comedian, adds fun. Filippant subtitles cheer the story on its way. But the show, of course, is Tom—and the boy still rides.

But the ban! protested Lady Maoul.

"We're not going to have any," Stakeham assured her blandly. "We're going to do it by special license—as mother did. And it's got to be a dead secret for the present, auntie. Just you and mother and—possibly Uncle Richard. You see, people would laugh—they'd say it was romantic and absurd."

CLOSEUPS

Charles Ray, who is now at work on his fall vehicle, "Dynamite Smith," has just organized the National Smith club. He's wired "Al," offering him the presidency. Press agents of Pathé are gathering lists of all the Smiths in the country so that they can invite them (complimentary?) to the first night of the film.

What a blow for the bob! Rupert Julian, who is making a moderate version of "The Phantom of the Opera" for Lon Chaney, will accept no principals or extras in the cast with bobbed hair.

Priscilla Dean tells us that she lost thirty—yes, thirty—pounds during the filming of "The Siren of Seville."

Jacqueline Logan has been signed to play the leading feminine role against Richard Dix in "Manhattan," his first starring picture for Famous Players.

Lou Tellegen, Betty Blythe, Forrest Stanley and Frank Leigh have been added to the cast for "The Breath of Scandal," adapted from the Cosmopolitan novel.

John Merle Coulter, Ph. D., professor and head of the department of botany, will deliver the convocation address on "The International Mission of Universities," at the one hundred and forty-fourth convocation of the University of Chicago, which will be held in Mandel hall at 4 o'clock on Friday, Aug. 23. ### THEATERS

Shaw's "Saint Joan" is at length in the book-stores, six months after the New York production of the play; and the dealers say it is in demand, which is credible: most of the chatter one hears of Shaw is by persons who read his plays (after a fashion), and never go to the theater when they are in performance. As to this one it is, in the reading, a bit more gassy than any of the others, not excepting "Back to Methuselah," which was mostly an entertainment in print, whatever of an ordeal it may have been in the theater.

But, then, "Saint Joan" was a success in New York, judged by length of run there, and is a success in London, by all accounts. It is tentatively bulletined for Chicago this season—with the original Theater Guild cast and production, which means nothing at all save as practice may have worked the nondescript players into an ensemble. And it is but fair to add that the Guild's experiments, with scenery and lights have been interesting and, at times, effective. The setting of the viaduct in "Lilium" is one of the things in kind I shall always remember; and its cost was probably less than Mr. Ziegfeld puts into a giraffe for one of his showgirls.

Miss Pollin, a better actress than her performing in "The Deluge" indicates, will be on her way after Saturday. Her part in that good play goes to Miss Jane Chapin; and I don't know who she is. (Other changes on that date and William Veck, president of the Chicago National League club, has donated the use of the park for the afternoon. There will not be any other important games on the north side and if you're a real fan, you will get your money's worth at the Cub park.

The Algonquin Indians, one of the best semi-pro teams in and around Chicago, will meet The Chicago Tribune team. There is no claim that this will be like a game between the Giants and the Cubs, but it will be a mighty good afternoon of baseball. The teams will have plenty of pep and both of them know most of all the tricks of the diamond.

In addition to the game you will have an opportunity to see your favorite cartoonist, be Sidney Smith, Frank Willard, Carl Ed. Carey Orr, or Oscar Williams, in person. These notable, along with R. H. L., who conducts the Line of Type or Two, will be at the game. They will exhibit their knowledge of baseball before the big game starts. Have you ever seen Sidney Smith run bases? Have you ever seen Carey Orr's fadeaway ball? Carey used to play baseball in Dixie. The others have some diamond tricks they will show and it's a safe bet that you'll be amused.

The game will be played for charity. Every cent that is taken in will go to the Camp Algonquin fund and The Tribune Free Ice fund.

Tickets can be purchased at 11 South Dearborn street. The general admission is $1 and boxes are selling at $10.

William E. Swifts to Help Establish New Strain of Horseflesh

BY PANDORA.

Government agents! It has a few sound in these days of prohibition and bootlegging, but this time it has to do with horses and the great business of horsebreeding.

The young William E. Swifts of Lake Forest have taken on what looks like an enormous and at the same time a most worthy job, that of helping establish a new, new generation of hunters and saddle horses in this part of the world. One of the Swifts' numerous hunters is a thoroughbred stallion, by name Hallmark, a former racer, with the blood of the winner of two English derbies flowing in his aristocratic veins, and the crossing of his line with that of the best farm mares hereabouts is expected to produce a splendid, stalwart brand of horseflesh.

Mrs. Swift, the former Helen Morton, who is one of the leading horsewomen of our country and an expert in things equine, and who with her husband, Lake Forest home, which they have christened Ridge Road farm, boasts a real community stable this year. Besides the Swifts' numerous hunters and runners, several of their friends' mounts are, as 'twere, installed there. Elizabeth Chase keeps her horse with her in the hospitable walls, as does the Donnellys, Mrs. Wayne Chittenden, Mrs. David Adler, and some half dozen others.

Mrs. Adler, by the way, is said to be one of the best and most daring riders along the north shore. She and Mrs. Swift are to be seen every morning riding together for hours at a time, winding up for an early luncheon or a late breakfast either at Ridge Road farm or at the Adler's charming house at Libertyville. Unlike cobblers' children, who go unshod, proverbially, at least, through the world, architects' wives frequently have the most useful of domesticities, and the artistic David Adler has achieved one of the loveliest backgrounds imaginable for his exquisite lady.

MOTHER LOVE FOR THE BLACK SHEEP

Is Nobler of All

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Have you not wondered some time at the attitude of parents toward the black sheep of the family? How he seems to be cherished more by the mother than the children who never give her a moment's sorrow?

Parental love for the black sheep, Anna Garlin Spencer, sociologist, tells us, is one of the saddest and one of the noblest of human exhibits in sympathy and affection. He may remain a burden and a sorrow to his dying day, yet mother love never fails him. Why? Because he is the child who needs most the tenderness of the parent.

The blind instinct of the true mother to succor, to protect, and to preserve the helpless creature she bears is of vital importance to the race. The delicate child, the crippled child, and the weak child are cherished more than the whole and hearty and excellent children, simply because of helplessness.

"A woman of the finest nature," Mrs. Spencer relates, "as a girl was captured in imagination by a man of brilliant quality but of peculiar cruelty and wickedness of nature. After their marriage he was guilty of many crimes. They had two sons. One was like himself, and became a man honored by all. He was of the greatest help to his mother. The other seemed the image of his father in all ways—personal beauty, brilliant talent, and a naturally depraved character. He landed in prison, sentenced for many years for forgery and bank robbery. His mother said with truth that she had never had a moment's relief from the most wearing anxiety until he was safely behind prison bars, where he could no longer torture his young wife or hurt any one else by his wrong actions. Yet that mother, when he was breaking her heart by his actions and most willing to do it, never failed in love, in patience, and in deep understanding of his moral twist and incapacity."

"A girl born of ordinary intelligent and moral parents," she further relates, "became a prodigy of sex perversion and the accomplice of thieves and murderers. She gave untold misery to all her family. The father never gave up his search for her, she left home, and never failed to give her suitor and most tender care when she came back. As a result, she abandoned all other interests in life to snatch her away from bad companions and try to establish her in a new place and a better surrounding."

I happened in a police court one day to hear a mother pleading for the release of her girl taken to the police on a questionable place of amusement the evening before. She was an emaciated looking young woman of 18 or 19, thin, pale, and with a look of despair. She was dressed in a simple, plain dress, and she was crying. The judge, who was a man of middle age, with a kind face, looked at her for a moment and then said: "There is no understanding that one told me she had five girls at home and this was the only wild one of the whole flock. But she loved her more than all the others put together."

The story of the prodigal son is taken from life itself. It is the compelling story of the one greatest affection of the family bond, as Mrs. Spencer says.

This Is the Day of Sally's Great Party at White City Park

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Are you ready, White City winners, for a wonderful time this afternoon? That's what we are going to have—

Lot more wonderful than I can tell you about here.

You know, of course, some of the things we're going to do. White City has marvelous rides—lots of them—and we'll try them all. And the shows, too, as many as we can crowd into one afternoon! The House of Troubles will open especially for us, and that's good news, for it is great fun.

All of you have received your invitation by now, I'm sure, so you'll know all about how we'll meet, the hour and everything. If you don't, or if something has happened so you can't come, please telephone me at Mrs. Truitt's this morning and let me know. But I hope that nothing will interfere with your coming and that I'll see every one of you this afternoon, ready for a glorious party!

And this morning, too, I'm going to pick the hundred lucky boys who'll be my guests at the White Sox-New York game next Tuesday. That will be a wonderful time, too, for the White Sox-Yankees game promises to be a corking one! Also on Sunday I'll tell all about another splendid party for both girls and boys—so don't fail to see next Sunday's paper!

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This one piece, slip-on dress is the lower part laid in plaits and joined slashed in from the under arm edges—giving the effect of a belt at the sides.

The pattern, 2113, comes in sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 36 inch material with 1 1/2 yards of binding, and 3/4 yards of ribbon.

When in Want, Use a Want Ad!

Remember 'Way Back

when Hilda the Helpful Household Amazon (not much on pulchritude, perhaps, but she could cook to the taste of Thor and Odin) made housekeeping a thing of rare delight. There are not very many Hildas still at large, but occasionally one is released by the vicissitudes of family fortune and found through a Tribune Want Ad.

"Take a letter,

please, Miss Hopplewhite. . . The Chicago Tribune, Gentlemen—Pursuant to suggestions of recent date, embodied in your publicity pages of public perils, I am enclosing order for a Tribune Want Ad which will enable me to secure a bookkeeper of superior intelligence and undoubted industry. Knowing as I do that preferred workers read The Tribune, I have not sent this ad to any other paper. The Tribune will be sufficient. Very truly yours, I. M. Wine.

"Feasts are Hateful

things," remarked Mr. Q. Horatius Flaccus, 2,000 odd years ago, only he said it in Latin. If you, too, dear reader, share the old reproach of being a miser, there is no law against getting all dressed up to listen to a Radio Concert—providing you have a radio—and if you haven't one, get one through The Tribune Want Ad Section where perspicacious people sell a small set to buy a larger one.

Meet

Mr. Scroggins,

the green-grocer of Threadneedle St., about whom the only thing green is the groceries. Like many of us who came over late, but under most respectable auspices, he is being handed the social reverses by the opening of the Old Times. But Mr. Scroggins has found that the dollar is very democratic, and he has met and obtained quite a few of them. By the way, he bought his little store through a Tribune Want Ad.

"—Were Happiness

Enow." A book of Sabatini, a box of chocolates and a quiet room, would, we venture to say, be Omar's formula of happiness, had he the misfortune of being alive today. Both Sabatini and the chocolates are products well advertised in our display columns, and a good room, clean and quiet, can be found in the Want Ads. Just one word more. Landladies and housewives who have a spare room, here's where to find a desirable tenant—Tribune Want Ad.

When the lure

of the far-away places finally conquers you and you decide to go to the mountains or the seaside or Europe or Benton Harbor, then remember that it is an economic waste to let the apartment remain idle, especially when you can rent it so readily with a Tribune Want Ad. Merely call Central 0100 and ask for an Adtaker.

A Well-Known

connoisseur of rare and ancient fabrics is the gentleman we picture above. But unless your fabrics are very ancient it were better not to sell to him, for after all, he has the professional collector's interest in pecuniary returns, which always detracts from Art. Garments that are still quite good, but a little behind the mode, can be sold much more advantageously through a Tribune Want Ad.

"Rejoice with

Me for I have found the great which was lost! Thus goes the old Bible story, which, no doubt, you, too, dear reader, have listened to many times during a pious youth. But in the eternal cycle of things the modern young woman is much more likely to lose a handbag or a vanity box. "But rejoice with me, nevertheless, for I found it by inserting a Want Ad in The Tribune."

"Just Mindin' My biz—ness along—" Mesdames, you can keep the wandering male home nights (whether he be brother, husband or son) by presenting him with a stout-throated cornet or saxophone. People who have musical instruments for sale find ready takers for them through Tribune Want Ads.

How Doth the

Busy fisherman improve each shining hour? By fishing, of course, and thereby storing up pep in the form of white and red corpuscles, vitamins and whatnot in a vigorous constitution whose energies during the rest of the year he will turn into shadoks which will fortify the well known wolf from his family portal. Resort owners, attention! He bought his summer cottage through a Tribune Want Ad.

If Peevish Pol has regrettable propensities to profane language acquired through the usual maritime associations, he is certainly not a fit companion for the more reticent sex. Sell him back to a sailor. Lots of poor sailors in Belmont Harbor never get any nearer to the coral strands of India than St. Joe, Mich., and must purchase their parrots locally. Tribune Want Ads find good homes for dogs, cats, monkeys and all other manner of pets.

When they moved into the new house, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Wilkinson found that the gas range was not what it might be. At times, like the bright orb of day, it glowed too fiercely warm and burnt the apple sauce as well as the layer-cake. You are precisely right; they sold it and bought another stove, inexpensively, through a Tribune Want Ad (Household Good).

HAVE you ever considered in how many ways Tribune Want Ads can help you? Turn to the Want Ad Section in today's Tribune and look over the different kinds of Want Ads that appear there. Thousands of advertisers sell Real Estate, Automobiles, Businesses, Furniture, Musical Instruments, and thousands of readers are helped by finding these articles at a cost less than they could buy them elsewhere.

Now consider how these Want Ads can help you to turn the things you no longer need into cash with which to purchase what you do need. Or they will put you in touch with an employe, or a maid, or a job, or an apartment.

The Sunday Tribune's Want Ad Section was never a better result-producing medium than it is today. With its enormous circulation of 950,000 copies and its hundreds of thousands of readers throughout the five-state area, every Want Ad works harder for its advertiser than ever before. Start using Want Ads now.

"CENTRAL 0100, Adtaker."

THIS PAGANISM OF OURS NOT BAD, HE ALL

BY SCRUTATOR

The last report of the United States patent office discloses that the inventive ability and achievement of man is still a rising stream. It trends toward automatic processes should slacken it by the fault of the inventor.

Most of us welcome such progress, but many of our writing men say that the trend toward automatic processes should slacken it by the fault of the inventor.

But only the other day a said that America is a pagan land, pointed to the "exploitation" in modern factories as proof of this.

So capitalism is both pagan and avaricious; it's all wrong to favor classes of critics.

Perhaps capitalism may be guilty to some counts in the charging "paganism." If the thing in historical analogy.

Capitalism is projecting its bathtubs into American homes. Capitalism is making and selling of bathing suits.

Capitalism is helping the people to make the Chicago lake front easy to look at or increasing on the beaches, whichever way to put it.

Now isn't there a hint of paganism in all that?

When a pagan politician squares himself with the proslavery, quipped provinces for a new house or another aqueduct.

For a thousand years after that, and demagogues had put it was rare indeed that anything bath in all Europe. They say than one European town teeming along with what remains pagan waterworks, plus a little work.

Is plumbing pagan or pure? leave it to the clergy and the gentiles to fight it out.

The people at work and play seem so grouchy over their own comforts and luxuries, except are kicking because they have.

If they are not enjoying life, clever actors, which ought to be a sin.

THIS PAGANISM OF OURS NOT SO BAD, HE ALLOWS

BY SCRUTATOR.

The last report of the United States patent office discloses that American inventive ability and achievement is still a rising stream. If the present trend toward automatic industrial processes should slacken it will not be the fault of the inventors.

Most of us welcome such news. But many of our writing men will not.

One needs read but little of modern fiction or reviews to learn that the paper is being inked in criticism than in appreciation of business and the whole industrial civilization of which business is only one phase.

Somewhat our discontented intelligentsia seem to associate machinery with the "paganism" that they are so fond of deploring, forgetting of the fact there were apocryphal millenarians before coal smoke smudged a sunset.

But it is still insisted that the spread of machine made comfort has coarsened the soul of man and taken the old "pagan" joy out of life.

So capital is both pagan and paganism in all that?

Perhaps capitalism may have to plead guilty to some counts in the indictment charging "paganism," if there is anything in historical analogy.

Capitalism is projecting millions of bathhouse into American homes. Capitalism is making and selling millions of bathing suits.

Capitalism is helping the park boards to make the Chicago lake front extremely easy to look at or increasing eye strain on the beaches, whichever way you prefer to put it.

Now isn't there a hint of historic paganism in all that?

When a pagan politician wanted to square himself with the proletariat, he usually soaked the taxpayers or the conquered provinces for a new public bathhouse or another aqueduct.

For a thousand years after those dictators and demagogues had passed away it was rare indeed that anybody took a bath in all Europe. They may that more than one European town today is getting along with what remains of the pagan waterworks, plus a little patch-work.

Is plumbing pagan or puritan, we'll leave it to the clergy and the intelligentsia to fight it out.

The people at work and play do not seem so grouchy over their machine made comforts and luxuries, except when they are kicking because they haven't more.

If they are not enjoying life they are clever actors, which ought to console the methinks.

OFFICIAL DENIES GREAT SHORTAGE IN ALBERTA CROP

Edmonton, Alberta, July 23.—The report from Chicago today that Alberta's wheat crop this year would amount to only 40,000,000 bu was characterized as "unfounded" by George Howley, Alberta minister of agriculture.

The government has made no estimate of the crop yet, and no information is available that will warrant even a reasonably accurate guess, he asserted.

"The situation is changing every day," the minister added, "and it would be impossible to make an estimate as compared with last year or any other year."

As a matter of opinion, I will say that the 40,000,000 guess looks like an extremely low one.

"While it is unfortunately true that there will be crop failures in some parts of the province, Alberta will still have enough wheat to be a factor in the market and the rains now being reported from various places are materially helping the situation."

Middle States Oil Co.

Stock Deal Is Enjoined

New York, July 23.—Supreme Court Justice Burr today issued an injunction restraining Charles H. Greenhaus, a stock broker, from dealing in securities of the Middle States Oil corporation pending trial of a suit brought by Attorney General Carl Sherman for a permanent injunction.

Greenhaus said in court last week that he had undertaken to obtain large amounts of the oil stock in exchange for gold notes on the Middle States concern, which he had been to obtain at a considerable discount. He said that his plan was to exchange the notes for stock, dollar for dollar, and make a profit of 25 per cent by turning the stock back on the market. This would have resulted in his making a profit of approximately $1,500,000.

CAROLINE KOHL BUYS VICTORIA FOR $275,000

BY AL CHASE.

Mrs. Caroline L. Kohl, widow of Charles E. Kohl, one of Chicago's best known theatrical managers, yesterday bought the Victoria theater on the east side of Sheffield avenue, 40 feet south of Belmont, from Stewart M. Seymour, for a reported $275,000. Mrs. Kohl is vice president of the Orpheum circuit. The Western Vaudeville Managers' association will book the Victoria.

The theater seats about 1,400 and covers a site 97x121. It is one of the best known of the neighborhood houses. For several years it was on a circuit including the National, and others, playing popular period, legitimate attractions. Mrs. Kohl says she will spend $100,000 in redecorating and remodeling the theater.

The seven stories and twenty-one flats at the southwest corner of Cottage Grove and 37th, 12x72, were sold to Abraham Weinstein, Samuel P. Flower for an indicated $145,000, subject to an incumbrance of $105,000. Mr. Flower at once resold the property to Jacob Silverstein for a reported $145,000.

Obtaining a desirable connection in

The security field is similar to "shopping around" for a good job. You have to KNOW from personal experience and study what will fit you best. And, you have to be able to instantly know whether it is "wool" or cotton.

If you have confidence in your ability to determine "wool from cotton" is a security job, you are a REAL CAPABLE MAN, and I will prove that I have the most favorable attitude with the most favorable leads and all the necessary "ammunition" to close sales. My record is 100% successful, 100% per week and more, and have a permanent connection that is permanent.

Since this is a REAL SALARIED position, I am not looking for a REAL CAPABLE MEN; so please don't waste your time or mine if you know you are not a REAL CAPABLE MAN.

Ask me for my Ehrenberg daily, weekly and monthly, and I am only in June.

Parents of Franks Boy Testify as the State Opens Its Battle to Send His Slayers to the Gallows

MURDER TRIAL IN WHICH A NATION IS INTERESTED OPENS IN CHICAGO. This picture was taken in Judge Caverly's courtroom yesterday morning shortly after the opening of the trial of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb for the murder of Robert Franks. Every seat in the courtroom was taken and outside stood hundreds barred admission. Inside the railing are seated the principals in the drama, with the lawyers, press representatives and relatives of the defendants. Outside are the few score spectators. (1) Judge Caverly, (2) State's Attorney Crowe, (3) Attorney Benjamin Bachrach of the defense; (4) Attorney Clarence Darrow of the defense; (5) Jacob Franks, father of slain boy, and (6) Leopold, one of the confessed slayers.

PRESIDES. Judge Caverly, who must fix the fate of confessed slayers.

'T WAS HIS SON WHO WAS SLAIN. Jacob Franks takes the witness stand during the opening session of the trial of Loeb and Leopold. Mr. Franks was calm under questioning.

UNDER FIRE. Attorneys Clarence Darrow (at the left) and Benjamin Bachrach, who are trying to save Loeb and Leopold from the gallows, hear State's Attorney Crowe denounce their clients as "vicious murderers."

CHARLES E. WARD.
(Bank clerk.)

EDWARD M. GRESHAM.

ALLIED PARLEY
NEARING BREAK
LONDON REPORT

Unable to Satisfy
Banks' Demands

BY JOHN STEELE.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service)
Copyright, 1924, By The Chicago Tribune
LONDON, July 24.—At midnight tonight the news was circulated in parliamentary circles that the allied conference on the Dawes plan had reached a breaking point and that there was no way out of the difficulty created by the demands of the American bankers. It is now being generally rumored that the conference will be adjourned.

The latest news came as a surprise earlier in the evening, following a meeting of all the experts on the Dawes and McKenna committees in London at the house of Sir Eric Kinderley, British banker, who reported that the prospects of agreement were much brighter. Committee number one, the political committee, was summoned to meet tomorrow, which seemed to indicate that some progress had been made towards an agreement. Good will appeared manifest on all sides.

It was learned tonight that tague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, has abandoned his opposition to Premier Theunis' plan for security for a $200,000,000 loan for many upon which the working of the Dawes plan is based. However, the Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., other American bankers still are adamant, refusing to have anything to do with the loan if the reparations commission has any power to decide the fate of the loan. The plan that in their view this is only the first of a long series of similar negotiations which it would be impossible to finance in America. The reparations commission had power to upset the arrangements.

Herriot and MacDonald Conference. Some progress, however, was made by Premier Herriot and Prime Minister MacDonald in a private meeting today towards arriving at an understanding. Their discussion embraced the following points:

Economic evaluation of the Ruhr. Military evacuation of the Ruhr. Evacuation of the northern part of the Rhineland.

The question of independent powers in case of a German default.

The question of control of the main railroads.

On every one of these points now said the French are willing to way to the utmost to achieve an agreement, even to the extent of state evacuation of the Ruhr, but in opinion in France demands compensation for these sacrifices. This compensation has got to be paid. It is also claimed by the French that they yield on all of these points will have nothing left for bargaining with the Germans.

May Leave for Paris.

From a member of the French delegation it was learned today that Herriot's presence is demanded in Paris Tuesday in the chamber of the senate for an explanation of the situation. He probably will leave for Paris after the naval review at Spithead Saturday.

The home situation has kept Herriot on the anxious seat and this morning he dispatched a messenger to Paris with an appeal to former President Poincaré to refrain from attending the conference, as he is still hopeful of a successful result for France from the conference.

At the same time the messenger charged to secure from M. Poincaré acquiescence to certain conditions which M. Herriot was convinced must be made in order to satisfy the bankers' demands.

Confers with Lamont. Before the daily meeting of the committee this morning M. Herriot conferred with J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., and it is understood he learned that much more than the $200,000,000 loan rests on his shoulders. The Americans pointed out that there is little doubt of the ability to provide security for the loan, and American political financiers are much more interested in the eventual fate of the loan to America and the state of European conditions.

It was indicated to M. Herriot that France satisfied the American bankers and would not do anything to harm European financial conditions. A much more advantageous arrangement might be made if French debt to America and the loan of security might also be considered.
